Sign-up underway for the Forestry Legacy Program

Florida Parish landowners looking for ways to preserve their forests in perpetuity against the commercial pressures of urban sprawl and population growth can now apply for compensation from the Forest Legacy Program (FLP), Agriculture and Forestry Commissioner Bob Odom said.

"The Forest Legacy Program is a way for landowners and other groups to protect productive and environmentally important forest lands threatened by subdivisions and shopping centers," Odom said. "It's purely voluntary but, if the land qualifies, a landowner could get paid to keep a large tract wooded and continue to practice forest management."

It's the first time the Forest Legacy Program has been available to Louisiana landowners. The Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry is coordinating with the USDA's U.S. Forest Service to accept applications for funding, Odom said.

The Florida Parishes are targeted because of the rapid population growth on the north shore of Lake Pontchartrain post-Hurricane Katrina and the environmentally sensitive wetlands of the Pearl River basin.

"Consider the family that's been in forestry for years and wants to keep it that way, but developers are knocking at the door to build condominiums," Odom said. "This program might ease some of that economic pressure to sell."

"Forestry is the largest agricultural enterprise in the state and has an enormous economic impact. Forests supply timber products, wildlife habitat, soil and watershed protection, beauty and recreational opportunities. They're worth preserving."

Applications are available online at www.ldaf.state.la.us. They will be accepted on an ongoing basis but funding is distributed by the U.S. Forest Service based on the federal fiscal year which runs from Oct. 1 to Sept. 30.
